Twenty Seven Win Places In Who's Who In Colleges

Twenty-seven students at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch have been selected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1964-65.

Nominees for Who's Who must be classified as either juniors or seniors. Students are elected in part by vote of departments and in smaller part by vote of the faculty at large.

The selection is based primarily on the student's scholarship. His participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, his citizenship and service to the school and his promise of future usefulness are also considered.

Students selected to appear in Who's Who are:

Total $84,571.30 Paid On Pledges

A total of $84,571.30 pledged to The University of Tennessee Martin Branch stadium fund has been paid, according to Gene Stanford, business manager.

This total is more than 57 percent of the total $150,106.37 pledged by different towns and groups who showed interest in the stadium.

In addition to the amount already paid, $2,000 worth of services rather than cash given should be added to the total value of the project.

The students at UTMB pledged $1,887.50 to the fund aided by a few alumni and have already paid $1,737.50 of the pledge. The UTMB faculty members have paid two thirds of their pledged amount.

Commenting on the payments of pledges to the stadium project, Dr. Paul Meek, vice president of U-T in charge of Martin Branch, said, "The response has been very satisfactory and completely on schedule, and it is anticipated that all pledges will be paid."

Peace Corps Test To Be Given Here

A Peace Corps Placement Test will be administered at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch Friday, November 20, at 3:00 p.m.

The test will be given in Room 112 of the Administration Building.

No applicant is to be permitted to take the test unless he has already sent his questionnaire to Washington or unless he submits it at the beginning of the test session.

Questionnaires may be obtained at the Admissions Office at UTMB. For additional information prospective applicants may contact Henry C. Allison, UTMB registrar.

Legal Designation For Martin Branch Remains Unchanged

UTMB's official name is The University of Tennessee Martin Branch as set by the state legislature in 1951 and will remain so until acted upon by the same body, according to Dr. Paul Meek, vice president of U-T in charge of Martin Branch.

Our name has not been changed. The signs on our campus designate that this is our campus, but it is not the full name of the institution, he said.

Perhaps at some logical time in the future, with the guidance of The University of Tennessee administration, a change of name may be considered and advocated by them, Dr. Meek added.

Changing the name of an institution cannot be a periodic occurrence just for the sake of changing its name.

Our primary concern at this time as well as that of other colleges and universities is the action of the coming legislature in the development of a coordinating board of all public higher education in Tennessee. What our name might be in the future is more likely to be affected by the development of this group than by current discussion, Dr. Meek concluded.

High School Bands Coming Here To Celebrate Band Day Saturday

Approximately 627 playing members of bands from 10 high schools in western Kentucky and Tennessee are coming here Saturday for Band Day at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch.

Climaxing the day-time activities will be a parade at 4 o'clock by participating bands from Martin, Covington, Milan, Bolivar, Union City, Decaturville, Huntingdon, Bruceton Central High, Peabody High, Trenton and Fulton County High at Hickman, Kentucky. Each band will be led by its queen for judging in the Band Day Queen competition. Judges will be Mrs. John Elrod, William Snyder and Charles Graham, all of Martin. Judges of the bands will be directors Tet Atsallis of Union University, Bill Meyers of Mayfield, Kentucky, and Lynn McNatt of North Side High School, Jackson.

Five New Buildings Planned For Development By Board

Plans for the construction of three residence halls for men and women, a library and a classroom at the Martin Branch were approved for development by The University of Tennessee Board of Trustees at its fall meeting, November 13 in Knoxville.

Mid-Term Grades Show 262 Deficient

A total of 262 students out of the 1847 enrolled at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch this fall had two or more F's at mid-term, according to H.B. Smith, dean of students.

From this total, 192 freshmen, slightly less than 20.4 per cent of the class, received two or more F's for mid-term. Last year, 157 freshmen out of 638 had a scholastic deficiency; this year, 192 out of 947.

The other 70 students receiving two F's comprised approximately 7.8 per cent of the upper classmen. In 1963, 42 upper classmen out of 808 had fall quarter mid-term grades of two or more F's. This fall quarter, the upper-classmen total 900 with 70 of them having scholastic deficiencies.

The day's activities will be concluded with the crowning of the Band Day Queen by Miss Linda Jessup of Union City, reigning queen, at the football game between the UTMB Vols and Austin Peay College which is to begin at 8 p.m. At half-time the massed bands under guest director Don Marcouiller of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, will present several numbers.

Martin merchants who will present gifts for the winners in the band day competition are The Fashion Corner, P & S Drug Company, C & R Drug Company, McAdoo's Pharmacy, Wade Furniture Store, Guttman's, Tyner's, Vaughn's Furniture Company, Merry Lee Shoppe and Dabbs Jewelry.

Plans for the construction of three residence halls for men and women, a library and a classroom at the Martin Branch were approved for development by The University of Tennessee Board of Trustees at its fall meeting, November 13 in Knoxville.

If these plans are matured, the three dormitory units will be built in the period 1965-67. Two of them would be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1966; the third in the fall of 1967. It is estimated that these units would cost around $900,000 each. They would be financed in large part by rent from students.

The board also authorized that sufficiently detailed plans and specifications for a library building to be developed to allow the university to file an application for a federal grant. The need for a library at UTMB has already been established and details set forth by committees at Martin and Knoxville. If the state funds are made available for this purpose at the next session of the state legislature to augment federal funds, the library could be begun immediately following such action.

In other action, the board gave priority to the adding of a classroom building at UTMB. It has been estimated that by the time this building could be made available, enrollment will have reached 2800, making necessary the additional facility.

Military Sponsors Turkey Shooting

Members of the faculty at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch and full-time employees of the school will be able to participate in a "Turkey Shoot" sponsored by the Military Department.

The event will take place during designated hours on December 4, 5, and 7, at the Rifle Range.

The winners of the male and female divisions will be presented a turkey at the UTMB-Austin Peay Basketball Game on December 9.

How About Those Grades?

How are your mid-term grades? The grades have been sent to the students and deficiencies have been pointed out. Many of the students who have deficiencies and are concerned probably feel a load on their shoulders and have the urge to call it quits.

Is this the right attitude? Are you going to "give up without a fight"? It is at this time that you should face school work squarely, hold your chin up and study hard. With a lot of hours of studying and with determination to succeed, you can conquer the problem, cast that heavy load from your shoulders and bring forth that quality of greatness that is within you.

Many have done it before you and many will do it again, so why not give it a try?

A familiar yell for you which all the students and faculty at UTMB would likely join in is "We're with you all the way so fight." That's the Tennessee and the UTMB spirit.

Twenty-Seven Were Chosen

The twenty-seven students of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch who were selected to appear in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities have received a distinct honor and need to have special recognition for their achievements.

These students were chosen by members of the faculty on their scholarship, citizenship, and their contribution to the campus community.

Being selected for this honor was no popularity contest but rather it was a selection for achievements well earned.

These students are juniors and seniors and represent a student body of 1847 students. It is these who are representative of the quality of this institution, for which we should be proud.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

During my ten quarters in school, I have often wondered why UTMB has such poor support of the athletic events.

Friday night, before the Troy State ballgame, was a prime example of the support given a campus activity by the student body. Above the noise and clamor made by the 85 or 90 people at the pep rally in front of the Girls' Dormitory, Kenny Dickson and Chris Holbrook gave us the answer:

It seems that part of the students here think that they are still in high school. When the weekend comes these students must run home to watch "Tiger High" play ball.

Last weekend our ASA offered to pay half of the cost of sending a bus to Florence State. Even at this price only a few students took enough interest to sign up for the trip. Needless to say there were not enough to pay for taking the bus.

If that group of students which runs home every weekend is not ready to cut those pink ribbons that tie them to their hometown ball team, they should have never ventured off to this big college. This is the group I really feel sorry for, imagine how frightened and lonely these students become after five or six days on the UTMB campus. I hope these students' mothers are good to them when they return home for the weekend.

I also have a great amount of sympathy for the student who complains of there not being anything to do on the weekends. These students must not realize that in order for the UTMB campus to be "alive" over the weekend, they must be here and participate in whatever activity is taking place.

I guess the contents of this letter will fail to accomplish their purpose. Usually the group of students that I have addressed this letter to are not interested enough in UTMB to read "The Volette." They had much rather run home and read the "Tiger Press." Just in case one of these students picks up "The Volette" and reads this letter, thanks for publishing it.

Sincerely,
Edward M. Butler

Library Use Aids Students Academically And Culturally

By Andrea Jonas

Is The University of Tennessee at Martin still a small "cow college," or is she moving toward a more cultural and academic atmosphere?

No doubt, scholarly universities revolve around the campus center of learning, the library. Does UTMB?

A major purpose of a college education is to cultivate the student's ability to seek wisdom and truth on his own.

Is the library building nothing more than a storehouse of communication materials and a convenient dating spot?

According to Dr. Norman Campbell, dean of instruction, the student's appreciation of learning, knowledge and books is a matter of tradition stemming from early development in the home.

Some members of the faculty believe that the students aren't stimulated to use the library as much as they should. It is likely UTMB is average or above in this respect.

"Every instructor has responsibility for assisting students in use of library materials. Teachers should refer students to books, not compel them. In general education, every course should teach the use of the library," said James E. Hadden, assistant professor of education.

Mr. Hadden suggested various ways that the student, himself, could cultivate his learning. The scholarly student could prepare a list of things which he knows nothing about, then go to the library and browse around until he becomes a liberally educated individual. Another suggestion, he advanced, was that students digest periodicals and professional magazines especially in their field of interest. Because of publishing costs, college textbooks are one to three years behind time. Thus a student, through use of the library, could be up-to-date in his field. A third suggestion, he added, was parallel reading, reading which is meaningful here and now.

"Escape reality through good reading," suggested Mr. Hadden. To be a broad man in this age of specialization, one must gain experiences through novels. The newspaper is the textbook of tomorrow; therefore, students should read thoroughly the papers including the "New York Times" and "Wall Street Journal."

How do UTMB students use their library? Miss Mary Ellis Hall, librarian, stated that many students use the library as a study hall studying their own textbooks. This places them near reference works. Next in use are the reserve books. She enthusiastically added that she expects use to increase when the new library is completed. This new building will be attractive in decor and efficient in service. Of special interest will be the group study rooms, individual coves, informal reading centers and browsing centers in the proposed million dollar building. The new library with its inviting atmosphere will certainly add to the cultural and academic lives of UTMB's students.

"Use of the library is revealed in the self-study to be 'adequate' and 'reasonable.' It would be difficult to validate this statement by spot analysis. The library is in transition along with the rest of the academic enterprise. Many new books remain uncatalogued. No one can predict the use of the library, but the committee suspects little more than marginal use today by either students or faculty," reported the periodic visitation committee of the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in commenting in their report following the self-study conducted two years ago by the UTMB faculty.

But do we want to be average? Do we want to graduate from college with only the bare essentials? Graduate work will probably be offered in the near future at UTMB. Will our students be prepared for the intensive library work required in graduate school? What can be done to stimulate students to scholarly study?

The first step has been taken, a more attractive, adequate building. Yet, it will take more to change reading habits. A faculty member explained that teachers should make more use to familiarize themselves with library holdings, and then motivate their students with meaningful parallel reading. Many student clubs and organizations have various cultural purposes. Dr. Campbell suggested that these could strive to stimulate their members' intelligence.

Do the students actually know how to use the library? The general answer would be "Yes, they learn this in English 113." But by the third quarter of the freshman year, the student has formed many of his learning habits. Unless he is above average, he will not acquire the "library habit" except as a study hall.

What can be done to achieve "maximum use with minimum abuse," to quote Vice President Paul Meek? Perhaps guided library use could be included in the first quarter of the freshman year or interwoven into all freshman courses.

Four Faculty Members To Present Research Papers At Science Meet

Four teachers from the faculty of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch will present research papers at the annual meeting of the Tennessee Academy of Science at Memphis State University, November 27 and 28.

Those presenting these papers are Professors George Horton and Elmer W. Counce, Dr. James Moore and Dr. James F. Key.

Mr. Horton, professor of biology, and Mr. Counce, assistant professor of agronomy, will present their joint paper entitled "Some Insects Collected from Sugar Beets Grown on West Tennessee Replanned Soils." Professor Horton summarized their paper as follows: "Since the sugar beet is a plant new to this area, the question arises as to what part beneficial or injurious insects may have in the successful production of this crop, since it is being introduced into a new locality."

Dr. James M. Moore, professor of biology, will present his paper, entitled "The Development of the Shoot Apex in Agave Scabia." This report traces the development of the shoot apex, or growing point, of the Agave Scabia, or century plant, from the embryo stage to the adult plant, which grows to a height of four to five feet. Dr. Moore collected various seedlings in Big Bend National Park on the Rio Grande River two years ago and brought them back to the UTMB greenhouse. He then proceeded to observe the growing processes of the seedlings and make slides of their progress.

Dr. Moore has presented three other such papers in the past three years, all dealing with "the shoot apex development in the woody monocotyledons."

Dr. James F. Key, associate professor of mathematics, will present his paper, entitled "An Experiment with Programmed Instruction." Dr. Key has written a programmed booklet for use in the study of quadratic equations. According to Dr. Key, "Programmed instruction as a way of teaching is effective; however, one should be careful in the design of the post test."

Professor Henry C. Allison, UTMB Registrar, is past president of the Tennessee Academy of Science and is serving on the executive committee along with Dr. Norman Campbell. Professor Horton is on the membership committee, a standing committee. Dr. Moore is chairman of the botany section for 1964.

It is possible to earn $300 a month from a job selection that includes lifeguarding, child care and other resort work, office, sales, shipboard, farm and factory work. Job and travel grant applications and complete details are available in a 36-page illustrated booklet which students may obtain by sending $2 (for the booklet and airmail postage) to Dept. N, ASIS, 22 Ave. de la Liberté, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

Faculty Women's Club Will Hold Tea Nov. 21

The Faculty Women's Club of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch will honor its new members with a tea on Saturday, November 21, according to Mrs. Floyd Burdette, chairman of the planning committee.

The tea will be held in the home of Mrs. Paul Meek from 3 until 5 p.m. New members include faculty members and wives of faculty members who came to UTMB this fall.

After Ball Game Dance Will Be Held By ASA

A dance sponsored by the All Students Association will follow the U-T Martin Branch and the Austin Peay football game Saturday, November 21.

The dance will be in the Women's Physical Education Building and will feature "The Barons." Admission for the dance will be $1.00 stag or drag.

Hayride Was Sponsored By Grenadiers' Club

A hayride was sponsored by The Grenadiers Club November 13.

The group went to Dresden for a supper and dance and then returned to Martin.

About 20 couples attended the event.

The Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity is taking part in a city-wide census in Martin sponsored by the Martin Jaycees in behalf of the City of Martin.

The fraternity will furnish the major portion of the work force in taking the census, according to Ralph Barnett, AGR general chairman.

The city is divided into four wards. The AGR's will take the census in three wards, and the Jaycees will be responsible for one ward.

Larry Phillips, Jimmy Gibson and Russell Cox are ward chairmen.

The supplementary census started on November 9 and will continue through Friday, November 20.

The purpose of the census is to determine how many more people are living in Martin now than were in 1960 when the regular census was taken. It is estimated that the census will show an increase in Martin's population by at least 500 persons. The city will profit by the increase by receiving a larger annual allocation of state tax monies.

Fraternity Gives Gravedigger Party

The Phi Sigma Kappa sponsored a "Gravedigger's House Party" last Saturday night.

John Federico, dressed as Frankenstein, won the most ghoulish person, and Tom Litton and Claudia Blount, masqueraded as count and countess Dracula, won the most ghoulish couple award.

The winners of the scavenger hunt were groups led by Jerry Thorne and Barbara Pace.

State Education Board Approves New Home Ec Education Program

The State Board of Vocational Education, at its meeting on November 6, 1964, unanimously approved the proposed program for offering Vocational Home Economics at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch.

UTMB is the only school of higher learning in Tennessee west of Nashville that offers this particular degree which may account for the 20.8 percent increase in home economics students this year alone.

Over a period of two years the Home Economics staff has worked with the staff at Knoxville to work out the program which will offer teaching opportunities to students under its jurisdiction.

First, the proposal was approved by the Home Economics Department here, then the Education Department here, and next by the Curriculum Committee of UTMB. Following this, approvals came from the College of Home Economics at Knoxville, the College of Education, the Curriculum Committee and the University Senate there. Finally, the program was approved by the State Board of Education headed by the Honorable J.H. Warf, commissioner.

The new program requires more liberal arts courses but will also allow for more electives. A woman student going into home economics will have a choice of the vocational course or a revised general course. At the end of winter quarter several women in home economics will complete requirements for the vocational program.

The report submitted to the State Board of Vocational Education by the visiting committee stated: "As the University strives for excellence, it can be proud of the quality of instruction being done at Martin. The friendliness of the student body of the entire institution is outstanding, as is the attitude of seriousness of purpose, pride in being a student of UTMB and general enthusiasm of the student body."

Thanksgiving Breakfast Will Be Given By BSU

A Thanksgiving Breakfast will be sponsored by the Baptist Student Union at 7 a.m. November 25 at the BSU Center.

A short program will be presented, and a meal will be served.

Vols Fall Victim To Florence In Second Half Of Heated Game

Second - half ball control handed Florence State College an 8-0 victory over UTMB last Saturday afternoon in a heated contest at Florence, Alabama.

The Lions held the Vols to only eight yards and 10 plays in the last two quarters while also gaining a touchdown and a safety to clinch their fourth win of a five-game series. With less than three minutes left in the third quarter, Don Cornelius, Lion quarterback, climaxed a 60-yard drive from two yards out with a six-pointer, and then mid-way through the final period, tackle Jimmy Roberts cornered a UTMB back in the end zone for the two-pointer.

UTMB's offense was stymied in the second half following a first-half exhibition of 96 rushing yards to the 58 of Florence. After the mid-game break, the host came back to hold UTMB to their diminutive net of eight yards and to gain 68 of their own. Passing also created a gap in the statistics. The Lions connected on six of nine attempts for 80 yards, prevented any Vol completions of their six attempts and intercepted two.

Moving the ball well in the first two quarters, the Vols put together three strong drives. The scoring chances, however, vanished, due to three fumbles and an interception. Florence had only one major drive in the first half, but it ended in an unsuccessful field goal attempt.

Rifle Team Loses To Florence State

The Florence State Rifle Team avenged an earlier defeat by The University of Tennessee Martin Branch Rifle Team and beat the UTMB team Saturday at Florence.

Ronald Benton was the high scorer for UTMB with a 256, and second was Hugh Deck. Other members of the team participating were Landon R. Taylor, Joe B. Cothran, Charles O'Bannon, Jerald White, John Young, Joan Aldridge and Shella Carmon.

The team has six matches remaining on the schedule. The next is with Ole Miss on November 21 at 8 a.m.

The loss was the second in four matches for UTMB.

Besides splitting with Florence State, the Vols have beaten Middle Tennessee and have lost to Murray State.

Pep Rally To Be Held For Austin Peay Game

A pep rally will be held in front of the Main Women's Residence Hall Friday, November 20, at 5:30.

This event, sponsored by the All Students Association, is to help increase the Tennessee Spirit and to show our football team that the students are behind them when they meet Austin Peay in the game Saturday night, said Larry Bates, ASA president.

Seniors Will End Careers In Game With Austin Peay

Seven seniors will end their career as Volunteer gridsters Saturday night when UTMB collides with the governing Governors of Austin Peay State College at Martin in the final game of the 1964 season.

The Governors have a pretty bright flag to wave. Of their impressive 6-1-1 record have come victories over Eastern Kentucky, Murray State, Carson-Newman, Middle Tennessee State, East Tennessee and Tennessee Tech, while tough Western Kentucky only gained a one-point decision over APSC, and Morehead held them to a tie.

Austin Peay, the newest member of the Ohio Valley Conference, last year ended the season in last place. Predicted to repeat that performance, the Governors surprised everyone by just about topping everyone. The series record with UTMB and APSC stands at 4-1 in favor of UTMB, but of course they are only figures.

UTMB will have to bounce back from their 8-0 blanking at Florence last week, while the Governors will be riding on a victory over Tennessee Tech.

Predicted to top the Govs by a considerable margin last year, the Vols fell 20-6. In previous seasons, however, UTMB has won by scores of 21-10, 13-7, 14-7, and 16-0. UTMB will be predicted to fall this week, but their potential can surely win out.

End and co-captain Scott Boehringer who is now the leading pass receiver this season, guards Tom Vickers, Wes Elrod and Chris Holbrook, who is the leading defensive man on the squad, captain center Deslonde Collins and his running mate Jerry Bethune, and leading rusher Chuck Lewis at fullback, will all be absent when the Vols return to the grid-iron next season.

As It Looks From Here

BY DAVID DUNCAN

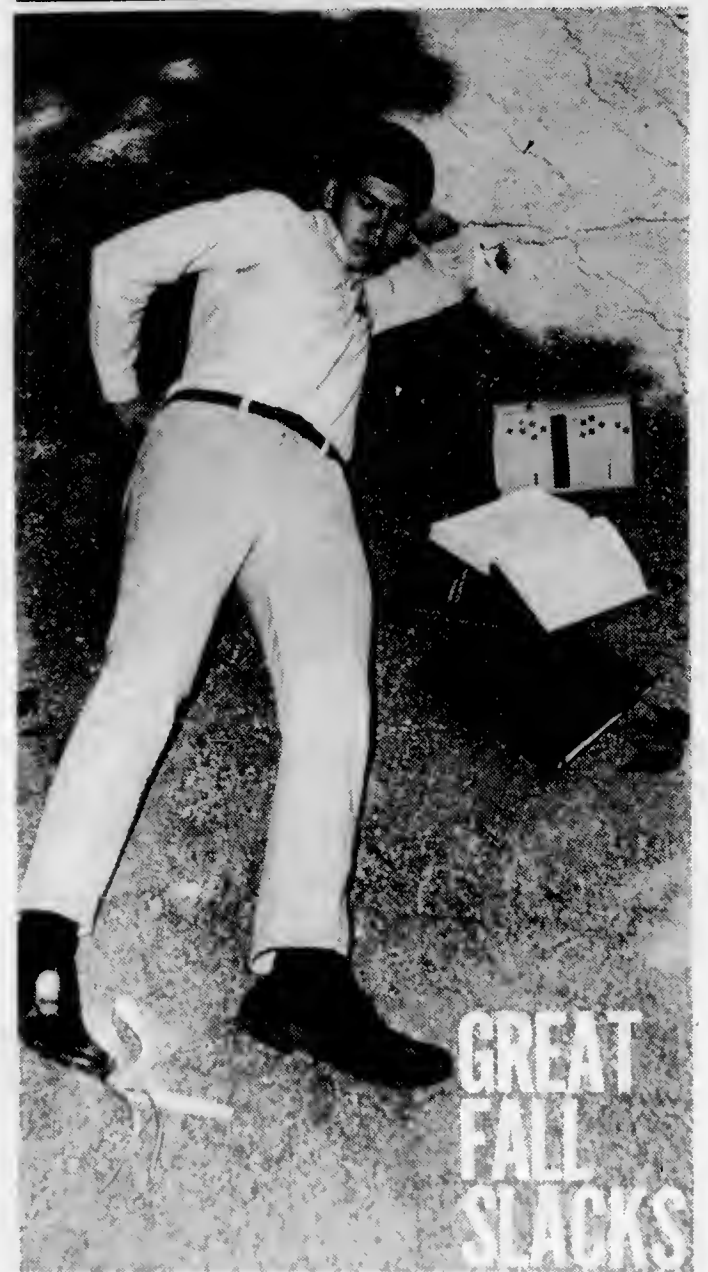

Here comes powerful Austin Peay State roaring into Martin, and there's little UTMB shuddering in the locker room. Here is the 6-1-1 giant-killing record of the Govs, and there is the 4-1-1 past of the Vols. Here are APSC wins over Murray and Middle Tennessee, and there are the Vols' loss to the Thoroughbreds and the tie to the Raiders.

Yet, here is a team with high potential and desire that has not really been shown throughout the season. Here is a team that can do the impossible along with mental and physical stamina and support from everyone. Here is a team that arises from a school of only 1800 students, and yet here is a team that hits as hard as any team that could be placed before them. Here is a team that has worked all week to win Saturday night, and here is a team that can do it. Here stands UTMB.

It'll take popping from start to finish, grinding play throughout, but that the UTMB Vols have experienced every week end and during every practice. With blood and guts, the Vols have provided hard-hitting football at UTMB - win, lose, or draw. It'll be a task to take this last game, but a victory will be of infinite glory to the team and the institution.

Speaking to the students: How about saying something to the seven graduating seniors on the squad this year. Tell them and all the players how much you have enjoyed their play this season. But most of all, come to the game Saturday night and watch them stomp Austin Peay.
